ACTIVITIES

Summer's hot and lazy days slowly faded into the cool, crisp days of fall. Excitement was growing in the students' minds as they prepared to come on the campus. The campus which had been quiet was about to burst into life again.

For Freshmen, the excitement came in new discoveries. Soon after arriving, they met their roommates, P.A.'s, PROBE leaders and many other future friends. The freshmen took tests, planned schedules and started to learn "the ropes" of college life. After quickly adjusting to campus life, the freshmen found their place in the "Taylor Family."

For returning students, the fall excitement centered around rediscovering all the special things about this campus. The long summer countdown had finally ended and all were ready to start the college life once again. For many of these students, the time of reunion with old friends was one of the best parts of returning to Taylor. The anticipation of returning was also mixed with feelings of dread when students thought of books, papers and all-nighters.

In the early days of fall, students were busy having fun and making Taylor their home. The first weekend on campus many students were busy building lofts, decorating their walls and moving parts of their homes into their rooms.

For students, fall was a good time to begin a new year and experience new things. It was a time to find out more about yourself and those around you.

Fall Spiritual Growth

A variety of topics and issues were presented during the chapel services held three times a week over the fall semester. Challenging and informative speakers enriched and broadened students' world perspectives.

President Gregg Lehman initiated the fall chapel program with a message entitled "Prescription for the Eighties." Other faculty members who presented chapel addresses in the fall included Pastor Bob Griffin, Dr. Richard Stanislaw, and Mr. Dale Sloat. Student Body President Scott Preissler exhorted students in his message, "Pressing on in the Race."

Several of the more unique chapel presentations of the fall were Mr. Jerry Franks, a blind trumpet soloist; the musical film parable "Music Box"; a mini-series on Christian self-image by Dr. Blaine Smith; renewal week messages by Dr. Tony Evans; a message by SATURDAY EVENING POST religion editor Mr. Robert Silvers; and a special presentation by Jim and Sally Conway.

Giving glory to Jesus Christ was the central purpose of most of the fall concerts. The emphasis was focused toward ministering to the students rather than entertaining.

The series began with a dynamic appearance by vocalist Benny Hester. Next Stephanie Boosahda delighted the audience with her music and songwriting abilities. She also ministered to the audience by the word of knowledge. In the fall Randy Stonehill and Servant and Fireworks also made their appearance on campus. Servant and Fireworks brought a little bit of rowdiness to the campus.

The goal of ministering to the audience was especially achieved through the Leon Patillo and Russ Taff concert. Commenting on the Patillo concert Ron Johnson said, "The Holy Spirit really moved during the whole night as we worshipped the Lord. The love of Jesus really radiated through that man. He gave an altar call and the front and both sides of Milo Rediger Chapel were filled with students accepting Christ into their lives." Taff performed many of his popular songs, and also led the audience in worship ending in an altar call.

SPOTLIGHT SERIES '82
FALL CONCERTS FROM S.A.C.

It was evident that the Lord used Tony Evans as a valuable instrument in starting a very real revival here during Spiritual Renewal Week — Sept. 20-24. Evans spoke nightly to the students.

A pastor from Texas — Evans holds major evangelistic crusades and Bible conferences across the country. Evans is also the chaplain for the Dallas Cowboys and Mavericks.

Perhaps the Spirit of revival was experienced during Spiritual Renewal Week simply because students realized the importance of a strong commitment to Jesus Christ. Evans challenged the students to seek God in His fullness. He stressed the importance of knowing God totally in order to know his will for your life.

Spiritual Renewal Week definitely lived up to its title. Several students renewed their commitments to Jesus Christ.

Special memories of mom and dad are always with us as well as they are apart from us. But the opportunity to be back together again with parents during Parent's Weekend provided the chance for parents and students to reunite and to experience a filled weekend. A weekend which incorporated some of life's most important ingredients, entertainment, fellowship and inspiration.

Parent's Weekend gave parents the opportunity to leave with a visual image of where their son or daughter lives from day to day. Students not only got to show off their campus but they also got to introduce their parents to the people in their lives — their friends and wing-mates.

Over Parent's Weekend Jim Law coached his first Taylor team to a victory over Defiance. Bob Davenport, who has been associated with Taylor students and Wandering Wheels, received a special award on the weekend. Helen Stapelton also was given special recognition for her devoted interest in the people here. Jim and Sally Conway, who had three daughters that attended Taylor and also were among the founders of the Parent's Association, came back to share and to be a part of the weekend's activities.

There were a lot of unique experiences during the weekend, but one aspect about the weekend which has been consistent with every Parent's weekend is the attitude to glorify Christ, so that the people present might be edified.

Playing With Laughter

Taylor Theatre started the laughing on Oct. 15 and kept it up until the 23rd by presenting Moss Hart and George Kaufman's comedy, "You Can't Take it With You." The cast did its share of laughing too . . . glancing at Julia Shepherd's typewriter it is obvious that she wasn't just pretending she couldn't type. Listening to Scott Etchison play the xylophone during performances, the audience would never have guessed that he'd been through a crash course in Patty Irvin's Xylophone School. On the whole the show ran smoothly except on the night when the animals decided not to cooperate. First there was the night Huckleberry dove off Julia's desk and ran through the audience. Two nights later Elmira was up to no good and very active in her cage. Barry VonLanken wasn't real comfortable about taking her out during the show but what an actor must do, he must do.

"You Can't Take it With You" humorously opened many minds of the Taylor community to acceptance of those different than oneself. Possessions and wealth may bring happiness, but as in the words of Grandpa Sycamore, "You can't take it with you."

Back for More

Homecoming co-chairpersons Kathy Payne and Bob Neighbour focused on the theme "Thinking of You" when planning activities for the weekend of October 15-17. Using Philippians 1:3-6 as a scriptural basis, the events of Homecoming 1982 provided opportunities for both alumni and students to share in the festivities.

The weekend began Friday evening with a concert by Tom Netherton, a popular baritone vocalist. Following the concert, "Grandma's Kitchen" provided a time for food and relaxation in the dining commons. Friday was also opening night for the Little Theatre production of the comedy, "You Can't Take it With You".

Highlights of Saturday's Homecoming activities included an alumni brunch, a pep rally luncheon, and the Trojan football game against Findlay College. The "Taylor Sounds" Saturday evening concert and Sunday morning Homecoming Chapel completed the weekend.

1982 Alumni Georgia Reasoner, Vicki Cruse, and Jill Meckley expressed their excitement upon returning to their beloved school.

Amateurs on stage — and a rowdy audience was present at the S.A.C. sponsored Variety Show. The acts were diverse in nature ranging from a juggler to a Blues band. Larry Marshall and Scott Pattison were Masters of Ceremony. They portrayed Steve Martin I and Steve Martin II.

The Beach Boys (Kevin Greves, Dave Eastman, Mike Wright, and Dan Edwards) returned this year. They performed their famous song "Be True to Your School."

Juggler J.D. Mosiman gave his first public appearance. Betsy and David Burns, together on stage for the first time, did a brother-sister hillbilly act.

A Blues number was provided by "Eddie Waters and The Come Join Us Blues Banned." A highlight of the act was the Burt Kaper harmonica solo. Eddie Campbell sang the Blues with strong back up instrumentals. Tom Reynolds played keyboard for several of the groups while Carl Broman accompanied on the acoustic guitar.

All in all, the evening provided a chance for students to sit back, relax, and enjoy the acts.

To start off the year's activity filled-Halloween Student Activities Council held a costume roller skating party at Idyl Wild Roller Palace. A variety of costumes were seen. Surgeons, punk-rockers, clowns, Fruit of the Loom actors, M & M candies, Frogs, etc. ... paraded around the rink skating to the music.

To add some thrills to the Halloween weekend the Sophomores sponsored a haunted trail in the woods by the Taylor Lake. The trail was illuminated by candlelight. However, the full moon added some light but a little bit of eeriness too.

Olson Hall participated in the Halloween activities as each wing decorated their portion of the dorm. The hall was opened for the community children to go trick or treating.

Christmas music coming from every other room . . . the soft glow of lights in the dorm windows . . . halls decorated with Christmas wrappings and paper snowflakes — these and many other things helped add a feeling of Christmas warmth on campus.

Although the lack of snow dampened the spirit for many students, the warmth did not stop anyone from carrying out Christmas traditions. A big dinner was given at the D.C., followed by a visit from Santa Claus. The Christmas chapel had a band featuring "Sleigh Bells" with an encore on demand. Music abounded with carolers visiting the nursing home and the community, chorale giving a beautiful candlelight concert, and an all-city choir performing an exciting rendition of Handel's "Messiah."

Above all, everyone on campus seemed to share a feeling of Christian love — the true spirit of Christmas.

The word which most accurately describes the winter is warm. December passed with more fifty degree and sixty degree days than days of frost and snow. In January, there was a little snow once or twice. February ended with temperatures above sixty degrees. A few days during the winter were cold and snowy enough for ice skating, cross-country skiing, and snow-mobiling, but some people found more days for sun bathing. Each snowfall was greeted joyfully, but spring, as usual, seemed slow in coming.

Spring Spiritual Renewal

Dr. Jimmy DiRaddo, discussing the relationships God has sanctified, challenged students to deeper love for God, the World, others, and themselves. In chapel services and evening meetings he gave illustrations and shared scripture in order to emphasize the value God places upon each individual.

Dr. DiRaddo is Executive Director of Transition Dynamics, Inc., which responds to people experiencing the trauma and tension of transition. Dr. DiRaddo was also co-founder of the Christian Counseling and Psychotherapy Center in New York, where he served as Executive Director. He is also a member of a number of advisory boards for various organizations and is part of the staff of the Media Presbyterian Church in Media, PA.

Because of his loving attitude toward all people and his understanding of students' struggles and needs, Dr. DiRaddo's messages were beneficial, dealing with timely, relevant issues.

The annual return to the 50's and 60's came with the first warm night of the year. On March 2, many students forgot their usual clothes and became flower children or bobby-soxers. The sign outside the C/A told everyone driving past that Nostalgia Night had returned.

After weeks of preparation, the core band (Jay Schindler, drums; Glenn Ford, bass; Arlin Troyer, guitars; Tom Reynolds, keyboards) was prepared to play for various acts — ranging from Sonny and Cher to The What. All were nervous and excited. The music started and the audience went wild. Country music, Motown, rock, folk songs, ballads, and skits were all vital parts of the program. MC's Kevin Greves and Kevin Rich kept the show moving while attempting jokes, giving away records, and commenting on acts preceding or following their remarks. Ron Johnson and Brent Jacobus engineered scenes from "Arnold's" to add variety to the show.

The audience was almost as interesting as the music. Girls in miniskirts and go-go boots came with guys in black t-shirts and greased-back hair. Various protest signs added insight to political opinion or personal creativity. Although the crowd was not as rowdy as it had been in other years, most people seemed to enjoy the show. The last notes of "Rock around the clock" brought the end too soon, but everyone left with a pleasant if problematic ringing in their ears as they planned: "Next year I think I'll . . ."

Spring Fellowship

Second semester brought a variety of speakers to chapel, ranging from a service honoring poet and former professor Barton Rees Pogue, to three Festival of the Arts chapels exploring symbolic and ritualistic elements of the Christian faith. Bruce Lockerbie spoke on a Thursday evening and Bonnie Jorgerson of Bread for the World, Rev. Winfield Ruelle of Children's Bible Fellowship of New York, and Don Odle shared with students on a variety of topics.

February was Black History Month and three chapels were dedicated to demonstrating that "we are one in the bond of love." Rev. Haman Cross, Rev. Daniel Light and Rev. Robert Johnson spoke, and the February 14 chapel was an especially strong campus expression of oneness.

Frank Gorshire of Language Institute for Evangelism, Dr. Gary Collins, Dr. Duane Cuthbertson, Dr. L. Arden Almquist and Chaplain Harold Elliot spoke during the semester, expressing concerns and challenging students to grow, comforting and reassuring the community. Pastor Bob Griffin and Dr. Gregg Lehman spoke several times, offering help and challenge because of their special relationships to students.

"The Diary of Anne Frank gave everyone an awful insight into the human soul. All involved were swept from their strongholds of security into the deepest darkness of human loss and struggle for survival.

The story is based on the diary of a 13 year old girl in Holland during WWII. Two Jewish families, the Franks and VanDaans, hid from the Nazis for 2 years in a one-room warehouse attic before being captured. The only survivor was Mr. Frank.

Portraying the characters who actually lived through this was especially challenging to the actors. Representing the lives which ended so tragically was very emotional for the entire cast.

The show did have its light moments though: Peter and Anne's first kiss; Mrs. VanDaan's trips to the W.C.; Mrs. Frank's motherly confrontation with Anne about being "dignified"; Mr. VanDaan's preoccupation with food; Margot's perfect personality; Mr. Dussel's impatience with Anne's nightmares; Mr. Kraler's doctor's appointment over the phone; and Mr. Frank's embarrassment at Mrs. VanDaan's flirting all added comic relief to the potentially explosive story.

"The Diary" cast was unique in its growth together and the bond which developed between them. The emotions seen by the audience were very deeply felt by each and every one.

Thought Provoking Drama

Alma, Mr. Winemiller and John discuss the purpose of life.

The spring theatre production was Tennessee Williams' drama, SUMMER AND SMOKE. Dr. Jessica Rousselow directed the show, assisted by Mindy Date.

The story of a minister's daughter and a doctor's son, proved to be very thought provoking. Cindy Erickson and Kurt Bullock superbly portrayed the demanding lead roles of Alma Winemiller and John Buchanan, Jr. Alma and John are next door neighbors who have never been able to accept each other. Their struggle to meet somewhere between their lifestyles fails and leaves both unsure of their real attitudes towards life.

Despite the serious tone of the play, the backstage area was wild, crazy and hectic as usual. Kurt Bullock has never lit so many dud firecrackers in his life. Mindy Date came through numerous times with a cap gun offstage. Greg Cox beat Doug Oliver black and blue each night. The theatre department believes in realism . . . which is the reason blonde Julia Shepherd is now a brunette. The hair dye was used to make Julia look Mexican.

Once again Dr. Hubbard produced a masterpiece with the set. Two homes and a park along with a working fountain were all necessary and Ollie ingeniously placed them all on the stage.

Overall, Tennessee Williams' difficult script was well portrayed in an exciting evening of theatre.

Musical Diversion

The SAC "Light Source" spring concert series brought a variety of artists to the C/A. The first concert, held Feb. 18, offered the distinctive rock-n-roll of Joe English (former drummer for Paul McCartney and Wings) and his band.

Chris Christian came on March 12. Although the concert was short, the performance was professional. Chris has not only written and performed Christian music, but has also produced albums for other artists and has performed and written songs which have reached secular charts as well.

As a special attraction, Danny Korem returned by popular demand, giving his amazing show "Fraud and the Supernatural."

On April 15, the DeGarmo and Key band returned. They are the only band who has performed here for four consecutive years. Many local youth groups used the concert as an opportunity to expose high school students to quality Christian rock.

After four years together, Portrait gave a final concert before the band broke up, partly because Geoff Moore (lead singer) and Arlin Troyer (bass) are graduating.

The Farrell and Farrell band gave the last scheduled SAC concert on April 30. The husband and wife team of performers and song-writers often give concerts at Christian music festivals like Creation.

As a semester-end surprise, SAC sponsored Fireworks in a final concert before the group's scheduled breakup in late May.

After months of in-between weather, when it was too warm for snow but cold enough for freezing rain and awful wind, spring came during finals week. Studying came second between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in order to get a tan while the sun was strongest.

Throughout March and April, students tried to keep warm while a few tenderhearted botanists worried about trees and flowers getting frostbite. For a while, memories of past spring seemed to be figments of a collective imagination. Finally, the first warm breezes (actually, they were tornado-like winds, but this is Taylor, remember?) came from the South, couples started wandering toward the lake, a strange yellow globe appeared in the sky (which was a funny color — blue), and frisbees started to fly. Spring had returned.

“For lo, the winter is past,
The rain is over and gone.”
— Song of Solomon 2:11

Approximately 1200 students joined the campus the weekend of March 19-21. They attended meetings at which Bill Eakin, director of Youth for Christ in Indianapolis, spoke; small group discussions; dorm activities; games on Saturday afternoon; and an Andrus, Blackwood, and Company concert on Friday night.

A major emphasis of Youth Conference was the challenge, especially to young men, to strive for more than pleasure and to live dedication to Christ in typical high school experiences. Bill's messages offered encouragement to students struggling to act as dedicated servants.

Annually, Taylathon brings the campus together for interclass competition. Couples are chosen for Tarzan and Jane, eight girls from each class organize themselves for the trike race, canoe teams practice getting wet, and 4 bike teams begin riding at ridiculous hours each morning. The class officers debate point values for each event, review rules, and set up schedules. Walt Cambell works with ICC to determine yet another bike route, since the new buildings annually change sidewalks and once again, the traditional route (last year's) won't work.

The seniors look for the costume they used for Tarzan and Jane last time (only to find they were cut up for Nostalgia Night costumes). The juniors anticipate a win in the bike race, the sophomores vow to do better this year, and the freshmen wonder what all this madness is about.

Although Taylathon was almost rained out and plans were made for the bike race in case of a storm before the 40th lap, nothing was delayed or cancelled.

After spending finals week a) studying, b) blowing off, c) sunbathing, d) packing, or e) all of the above, seniors found themselves suddenly free late Thursday. Classes were really over. By Friday, graduation practice sounded almost fun if only for relief from monotony. The recognition dinner Friday night, where they were served mostly by faculty, really was fun. So was the program afterward, which had the theme "A Medley of Memories." Dave Eastman helped present the class gift, and the slides and skits reminded the seniors of all the fun of the last four years.

Saturday came, muggy as usual. Dr. Halvorson, chaplain for the U.S. Senate, spoke on "God's sacred vocation" and seniors were presented with copies of Taylor's history and the alumni directory. After pictures and lunch, it was time to return to the gym for commencement. Graduates-to-be waited in the wrestling room while the penny plan was explained (each graduate gave a coin to Dr. Lehman as a symbol of continuing involvement and interest). Then "Pomp and Circumstance" was heard, the lines started moving and suddenly they were really graduating. Mike Kendall delivered the address: "Believe" and Dr. Halvorson received an honorary degree. Then the names were called, one by one, and each hopeful senior stepped from the edge of the platform.

When all the names were called, all the tassels switched, and the "March of the Charioteers" began, the brand-new graduates marched out, looking proudly for family, friends, and doubtful professors with an expression that clearly said, "I did it!"

LEFT: "Believe in yourself!" was the emphasis of Mike Kendall's speech.

ABOVE: Roommates Paul Branks and Craig Bridwell were fortunate to be able to sit next to each other during the ceremony.

LEFT: Bob Auer awaits the time when he will become graduated.

DORMS

English Cellar

Before "focusing in" on English Cellar, let's clear up some popular misconceptions associated with our wing. For one thing, we DO have windows down here. Most people picture a gloomy dungeon complete with cobwebs and dirt wells. But, the Cellar is just like every other wing in English.

The theme of the cellar is "Go Green", which could explain all the nightmares you've had after seeing all the bright green sweatshirts all over campus. We have obsessions with Jane Fonda's workout, dutch blitz, and the "Masked Avenger". Without us, Ivan-hoes would surely go bankrupt. On some of the less serious moments, you could find a cow's kidney (named Sydney) in the Candy Machine, get hit by a flying soccer ball (Edgar), or see 17 girls being "Sincere." The serious times include setting off the fire alarm by burning crackers in the toaster (at least Mozie looked serious . . .).

Like all other wings, we too suntan outdoors in February, "redecorate" other people's rooms, have Halloween parties, game parties, and receive visits from Santa. We continually raid the candy machines; Round 1, Round 2 . . . especially since we're only 50 feet from it.

All in all, living in the Cellar is an experience you would never want to miss!!!

First South English

First South English is a very unique wing. It would be impossible to find another wing like this one. There are a lot of special girls on the wing, and a real sense of unity and oneness among the girls.

First South is very different than other wings, part of that difference comes from the fact that we are separated from the rest of the hall by our location. Our wing is very comparable to a sorority, which at times can be an advantage or a drawback. There are four particular traits we are known for: Participation in intramural football "1st South Savages", numerous birthday parties (every week!!!), our constant cranking of stereos and our renditions of a few favorite tunes.

What happens when 32 girls from New Jersey to Nigeria are brought together for a year on Second South? They have fun! We have a couple of shady ladies, a toy canadian, some musicians, artists, tennis, volleyball, and basketball jocks, a cheerleader, and 2 Tabaholics. We are individuals. When we goof off some of us like to play in the mud, go trick or treating, have water, whipped cream, and food fights, play football in the snow, have backgammon tournaments and jazzercise. Others break coffee cups, hang clothes out their windows, curl hair, get engaged, and lay out in March. We're the undisputed "firsts" in Wengatz at 5:00 p.m. for dinner together.

Our entertainment ranges from Western ho-downs to current movies like "Tootsie". Our taste in cuisine goes from Trojans to Butterfields, from hot cider and doughnuts to cold "Hoes" and cookies. Then to work it all off we compete with enthusiasm in football, basketball and softball intramurals before hundreds of devoted fans! Then when late night excitement hits its peak as studying begins, papers are typed, and built up frustrations from classes turn into hysteria. The ironing room becomes the dreaded typing room, the girls are asked to leave their suites, turn their radios down and keep their voices to a dull roar!

Because mom's had enough of it all and has decided to go to bed, we all stop what we're doing and quiet. For when the lights go off in room 227 everything draws to a close, thus ending yet another exciting day on second south.

Third South

Remember the playing in the rain, telling ghost stories by candlelight, watching the air popper pop little kernels of corn, chatting on the phone until all hours of the night, and spending serene evenings in our cute dorm rooms.

Probably not because we're not your usual dull floor.

We did smosh baugh, see-plekers, koos, ughwashing while quasiking, Praubriest, and the most skilietins of them all mush-kecoytemriestikle. And slaker-wackes was it fun.

When I think back on the time I spent living on Third Center Olson I always get a silly smile on my face. Without being overly sentimental I can honestly say that the times I spent on 3CO were some of the best of my life. I mean, where else can you always find someone who would love to order a Trojan pizza (with everything) with you at 1:00 a.m.? Had I not lived on 3CO I never would have known the "thrill" of a pick-a-date, the suspense of secret sister/brother week, or the adventure of a 10:55 p.m. shake run to Hoe's. Life as I know it would not be the same had I not experienced some of these simple pleasures.

Aside from these memories, I'll always remember the time spent with caring wing-mates in prayer or pouring over our bibles together. God gave me a blessing after blessing while living on 3CO, through the loving friends He brought into my life. I'll never be the same.

3 cheers to 3CO and most of all, here's to you Grace! Thanks for the memories.

Third East Olson

High atop Olson Hall on the eastern wing is a rare collection of Taylor's finest females. We have 12 fraternizing freshmen, 13 scoping sophomores, 13 jiving juniors, and a solo senior. You'll find the girl of your dreams, no matter what your interests . . . actresses, cheerleaders, coaches, intellects, journalists, missionaries, musicians, officers, senators . . . you name it we've got it!

Our more notable activities include: a stunning performance as the 3rd East Travelers in the Variety Show, turning Muncie Mall upside down on a 50's signature scavenger hunt, originating the hallway aerobic "dancers", a fast starting football squad led by Tom Landry, Dave Burns and assistant Vic Welker. The everpresent aroma of popcorn and pizza permeate the wing as the familiar tune "Muscles" blares from the stereos.

This outstanding selection may be obtained by dialing x356 or visiting our open houses. If all else fails we are highly visible in our florescent gold wing sweaters.

Any focus on Third West Olson would have to center on the wide variety of unique qualities in its individuals. The 19 new wing-mates quickly picked up this "be yourself" spirit from the "core" (11 of the original 26 1980 freshmen, and the 4 sophomores on the wing).

Special memories of the 1982-83 year include: Kathy Kelly's Doogan, the wing mascot and wonderdog; the wing mystery meal (yea, cold spaghetti!); Sally's ALMOST five foot tall party; "The Dating Game" (You are so beautiful to me); Jackie Bass and the Spazzmatics; the Nativity according to Jones; Jill and Sally at Christmas; "Who took the bathroom partitions?" (Tradition!); 1st place in the Olson Hall Halloween Decorating contest (mmm — all those doughnuts); the Rest-In-Peace, M*A*S*H party; hair cuts and perms in the bathroom with Hollia's ghetto blaster; and last but not least — NEW PENS for the graffitti boards in the bathroom! (Kooter, you fleabitten cutie you.) GRACE OLSON LIVES!

If you should walk through Sammy II on any given day you might encounter some very unique experiences. Possibly you would encounter wicked D's, a muckluk, passion, psycho, lobo, lude or the renowned wazoo and his friends with the blow gun and shirkens. Maybe talk with a schwanz or slam dance a stretch and get into a champagne jam with jammin Jeff. If you're invited to the classic floor banquet you could sit next to a coke and crackers, or just have intimate conversation with Naked Burlap. However, consistent soccer victories, dominant B-Ball and tennis ball wars are our forte, we don't like luggage on Sammy II but we do take in body buddies. Ever met the famed "Gung Foo?" He's in the hall occasionally, and so is John McEnroe.

Seriously . . . focusing in on Sammy II will bring you to see the good friendships, spiritual growth, and good times we have when we're together.

Third Morris

In 1967, Third Morris became the brotherhood. Since then, it has been a tradition and the tradition lives on today. The brotherhood is not just a name, it is an adventure and anyone who lives on Third Mo is a true brother.

The brotherhood spirit was brought out through endless hours of video "War Lords," food, push-up poker, butt sliding, dead squirrels, mud football, serenading the senioritas, lounge wrestling, and just plain blowing off studies.

There were different activities — The Chili Pot Party, Barn Movie Night, The Ski Trip, our annual Christmas Party, The Racquetball Tournament, and our traditional Bro-Ho court.

Intermurals during the 82-83 season can be summed up in this way — "It is not whether you win or lose, it is how much fun you had that counts."

"Hey Mac-cracklin, Gimme dat hamma . . . heh!" " . . . Piz-za!!!" "Look at that gut, Gil!" "Just git on the phone!!!" " . . . right Rod?" "Hey guys, want a cup of cooaffee?" Dissatisfied with the English language, the men of 4th Morris did what they could to improve communication. Ah yes, let us not forget, "I am a cat . . . my daughter my cat is my own . . . my son." Nice T-shirt Sebastian.

The Penthouse is a quiet, laid-back place where life is slow and easy. If you are really observant, you may even see some wild life — remember "Z"? The Penthouse Mascot, loved by all. Unfortunately, he broke a few hygiene codes and was promptly exiled to Boston.

For those of us that stayed around, floor life consisted of everything from corporate juggling, an all too-occasional water fight, prayer groups, a David Letterman Fan Club, anywhere from 2 to 4 phones, beards coming and going, and ear rings — mostly going.

One more thing, somebody tell Hammond the spaghetti was delicious.

When looking back
It all seems blurred,
Well here's a reminder
Of things that occurred —

There were times that were tough
And we were subdued,
But a friend was near
And hope was renewed.

There were times that were fun,
With rooms full of laughter
Like Kerby and graveyards
And the embarrassment after.

We were all on our own,
Yet all worked together.
The guys we all knew
We'll remember forever.

Perhaps most of all,
And most encouraging,
Was that our wing cared,
And that meant everything.

"Generations come and generations go, but the earth remains forever." — Eccl. 1:4 NIV —

So it goes with the men of Second West seems to linger on for an eternity. There is always a number of new faces on our wing each year, and there is always a number of faces that disappear. But the bright side of it all is that the faces turn into people and then into friends and then into life-long buddies in the inbetween time.

What's so unique about our wing? Not much. But then that's what is unique. We are just a bunch of "average guys" — Not too studdly and not too weird. Well, maybe one or two of us are weird. Anyway, we have our freshmen who faint at the sight of Taylor's female types — interpret that as you so desire, and we have our panicking seniors fainting right beside them. Yet whether it's the guy across the hall or the gal across the street, Taylor friendships seem to stick with us for the rest of our lives. See ya next year Second West.

There is one wing on campus where the real meaning of togetherness and brotherly love is portrayed: Third Center Wengatz. This unique wing is made up of guys from all walks of life with many diverse goals. Together they do such things as "The Morality Patrol"; Spelunking, eating, skydiving, swimming in the lake in Feb., blowing bubbles at the annual Christmas Chapel, and the famed "Blues Brothers."

This year Third Center has grown together in Christ, working to glorify God in all things. The Spirit of God has been revealed through our weekly Bible Study, discipleship groups, and our love for one another. Living on Third Center is truly a unique experience.

The Hilton, The Ritz, The Broadmore, MGM Grand. All establishments of excellent reputation and impeccable credentials, yet when the subject turns to quality lodging and unparalleled lifestyle, and even a smattering of education, the aforementioned establishments wish they could even compete with the leader. That leader is SWALLOW ROBIN ACADEMY FOR YOUNG MEN.

Swallow Robin is an academy for achievers. In fact, Swallow's versatility, which is considered to be one of its major assets, can be attributed to the many institutions which were founded by some of the dorm's bigger achievers.

The Archives: An excellent collection of artifacts that take the visitor on a short walk through near-forgotten corners of T.U. history. Co-chaired by Duplex and Jate, doctors of Rebellion Psychology, the Archives would like to thank the many civic-minded donors.

Waterman Federal Savings and Loan: Gary Waterman, President of our local banking institution, is very understanding and has never been known to repossess essential items such as albums or stereo equipment. He has been cooperative enough to restrict such actions to non-essentials such as textbooks and classnotes.

The Lost Banquet: Greg "Mongo" Quavis, who was mistakenly left in charge of the traditional Swallow Christmas banquet, receives biggest achievement award.

Swallow Robini: The often copied, never equalled annual Italian dinner in the Lavish Swallow Lounge was once again a smashing success. Thank you Chefs Ludwig and Beet.

Roach Ranches Consolidated: Swallow offers prime habitat for the ranching of cockroaches. The spring round-up shows the herd at maximum density with plenty of meat on the hoof. Ranch foreman Hype says, "The Pizza and calisthenics have definitely paid off. Herd upgrading is in process with our new bull, Gramps."

Hill House: A hands-on lab experience in the second law of thermodynamics.

The institution would like to thank the following people for their selfless sacrifice and hard work: Flash, Pash, Guacamole, Beet, R-R-Rieth, Slick, Water Q, Hype, Z, Lud, Coke (B-B-B), Jate, The Dupe, and Gramps.

If you too care to achieve, call 371 and ask for Myles.

TSO

Student Body President, Scott Preissler.

"This year has been a year of strategic growth for TSO," stated president Scott Preissler. The organization strived to become a more personal organization. Their main goal was to serve the students effectively and efficiently.

TSO members invested their time in many programs throughout the year. They planned and staged a multi-cultural weekend. During this weekend 35 black high school students took a serious look at TSO. One branch of this organization, Student Court, broadened their range of responsibility. They began to deal with student discipline problems for the first time.

The various branches of TSO worked together on informing the students about a wide variety of issues. Scott Preissler said, "I really feel as though we let the students know what was happening on campus."

The nine-member Student Activities Council dedicated themselves to providing a variety of quality activities for Taylor students, glorifying Jesus Christ in their endeavors. They met weekly to plan events, dedicating their time and talent to Christ.

Highlights of the year's activities included the first successful outdoor movie, "The Promise"; all-campus Christmas caroling; and Nostalgia Night. Several blockbuster movies shown were "Star Wars," "Chariots of Fire," "Victory," "Rocky III," "Star Trek II," and "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

Outstanding fall and spring concert series were performed by such Christian stars as Benny Hester, Stephanie Boosahda, Randy Stonehill, Leon Patillo, Russ Taft, Joe English, Chris Christian, DeGarmo & Key, and Farrell & Farrell. A double concert was presented by Servant and Fireworks. Magician and mentalist, Danny Korem, entertained, informed and intrigued the audience at a "special attraction" performance.

SPORTS

Men's Football Played Tough to a 4-5 Season

This year's football team was under the new direction of Head Coach Jim Law and assistant defensive coordinator John Bonham. A lot of the teams the Trojans lost to were closely played games. They outplayed most of the teams in the H.B.C.C. Jesus Christ was most definitely glorified this year. Next year the Trojans will be playing without outstanding Seniors: Mike Lee, Dave Eastman, Kevin Rich, Brent Jacobus, Tim Able, Tim Nordberg, and John Davis. Tim Nordberg was Taylor's top player. He had been captain for the last two years and All-Conference for the last three years. Tim and Brent were the only four-year lettermen of the 82-83 season. It was a great year, but next year will be even better.

Men's Tennis HBCC Champs

The tennis team, although facing tougher competition than in recent years, enjoyed yet another winning season. They finished first in the conference. Phil Norton, Charlie Payne and Von Clendenen made the all conference squad. The team also placed first in the district 21 competition. They finished the season with an 8-2 record, losing only to Goshen and Marion. Phil Norton and Marc Levesque also received all districts honors for their performances.

Serving a Strong Season

Despite a losing record, the team feels the year was one of the best. The Coach, Sue Herbster, taught the team to strive for consistency, stability, and growth stemming from inner motivation both on the court and in their personal lives. They were more than a tennis team, they were a team of fellowship and friendship. This growth in their personal lives was the main reason for their vast improvement throughout the season. The girls had fun this season and that is most important. They came away from the season with a winning record in their minds. That is the focal point of any team's season.

Voted most valuable player, Janet Carlson jumps for the ball in hopes of returning it to her opponent.

Cross Country Team Had a Tough Season

The Cross Country team struggled through a rough season as they slipped to a Fifth Place finish in the H.B.C.C. meet. Graduation took its toll on the team as Seniors Walter Bliss and Paul Orchard were the only returning lettermen. Although the team suffered through many personal injuries, there was always a positive attitude. This was evident as the team performance improved throughout the season. Coach Glass was an inspiration to everyone as his dedication and enthusiasm was evident.

Field Hockey Team Improves Record

Women's Field Hockey team began their season with five experienced freshmen coming in from the East coast to join the team. The team had two goals which they worked towards throughout the season. The first goal was to bring the team closer to each other — in the beginning of the season the team seemed to be known for their varied personalities. However, as the season progressed, the team managed to pull together in a very special way to form a single working unit, which continuously felt the Lord's blessings. The second goal the team established was to improve their record (1-11) up to 6-6. They missed their mark by two games finishing with a 4-8 season.

The season held many trials of frustrations and struggles for the young team, but it proved to be a profitable experience in which the ladies gained an insight which strengthened them within their volleyball skills.

Co-Conference Champions

Looking over this past season, the Trojans really showed team effort. This year's team was composed mainly of experienced players even though there were some rookies. This team was one of the best Taylor has seen in a long time. It was an exciting year and the team gave God all the glory in their wins and losses. Coach Patterson taught the team to be disciplined and patient. When they played, the team played the game their way and not their opponents'. They usually ended up on top. The Trojans finished with the best record in 20 years.

Track Takes Off

This year's track team, headed by Coach George Glass, has a winning season. With over thirty team members, the Trojans had strong runners, jumpers and throwers.

Although seven strong competitors, the seniors on the team will not be returning next year, Glass is hoping for another successful season. Coach Glass, who was named Co-coach of the Year by the District 21, has been coaching track for numerous years and, once again, his experience has paid off.

The team, despite disappointments such as meets cancelled due to rain and various injuries, had an enjoyable year. The members all pulled together to show what the athletics here stand for.

The women's track team ended a successful season with a bang. They finished the year off by taking the NAIA District 21 Track Meet and breaking five school records.

Throughout the season, despite injuries and disappointments, the girls stuck together. Coach Ruth Ozmun, named Coach of the Year at the District Meet, commented, "We were strong in our hurdles and the 400 and 800 dash runs ... It's been a good year."

With several graduating seniors on the team, they are aware that next year will be different but, in Sandy Nagy's words, "The others can carry on without us."

Better Than the Records Show

Smiles, sparkling eyes, positive attitudes and a readiness to win. These are just a few of the mental and physical characteristics of sixteen young ladies of the softball team as they stepped into the van, ready to depart for sunnyland U.S.A. . . . Florida. To prepare the ladies for their regular season they went to Orlando and played eight games — the results were fifty-fifty. After spring break they got off to a slow start due to bad weather, which meant no games for about two weeks. The team increasingly improved with each game. They were a lot better than their record showed — that is difficult to understand but it is true. They played a lot of upper-bracket teams.

Third in Conference

The team got off to a slow start this year. Their trip down to Tennessee was not very good, record wise. But the players were very close and the good Bible studies and sharing kept them together. Hitting at the end of the season was very good. The pitching staff was strong all year. Defensively the team had improved. Coach Larry Winterholter led the team spiritually and did an excellent job coaching in tight situations. The team was young, having mostly freshmen. But the team will be losing four strong seniors: Mark Wright, Randy Rutzen, Don Mettica and Tim Able.

The three rookies were Junior Jeff Morton, Sophomore Tim Pashley and Freshman Roger Muselman. The Coach was Joe Romine.

The team began its season with a trip to Florida compliments of Coach John Wheeler and Coach Don Olde. FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION

Dr. Lehman Focuses on the Presidency

Although he prefers questions about his family, his future plans, and his favorite forms of relaxation, Dr. Gregg Lehman agreed to focus in on some of the best and worst aspects of his second year as president.

He began by briefly describing some of his responsibilities, especially the public relations aspect which, he said, is about 50% of his job. He represents Taylor to students, parents, alumni, and the media, writes for the Echo bimonthly, speaks in chapel at least four times each year, and meets with students for Bible studies and discussions in the dorms. Dr. Lehman said that this year, which has brought changes to Taylor, has also brought changes to his life. Because of the pressures of trying to raise money to balance a budget which was $450,000. in arrears, he has had to reallocate his time. He is trying to recruit larger groups and find long range plans which can deal with questions like: "What can be done if the student population drops by 500?"

Dr. Lehman focused on his least favorite activities as president. He dislikes the long hours, the time spent away from his family, deadlines, and "24-hours-per-day, on-call" nature of his job. However, he remarked on his favorite features of his work: he loves public speaking and fund-raising; presenting Taylor to people who have never heard of it before, watching students mature socially, spiritually, and intellectually over the years they spend in college, and helping develop programs which, like the new policy which allows students whose parents are unemployed to attend school free, exemplify the same spirit as that which allowed Sammy Morris to attend Taylor almost 100 years ago.

Focusing on his favorite pastime, Dr. Lehman says that jobbing "keeps me in shape and sharp for the pressure of the job."

SENIORS

Senior Life

Senior year is a funny time. Half the class, it seems, is gone first semester for student teaching and when they get back, the other half leaves after midyear graduation or for an internship. Many people live off-campus and come out only for classes and an occasional D.C. meal. All of them keep using funny words like "comps," "re-sume," "cover letter," "job offer," "cap-stone," and "cum laude." Everything gets blown off but they want to get good grades for once. Seniors get used to saying goodbye to important people like friends and professors — even parents — as they get jobs or just leave to enter the real world (an imaginary place where grown-ups live).

As spring gets close and graduation looms, "last times" become more frequent until seniors begin crying at the mention of Ivanhoe's or the water tower. Taylathon comes and goes, finals end, and suddenly, so does the year and somehow, college is over.

"There are a lot of memories that I'll take from Taylor: like eleven hundred crazed rock fans on Nostalgia Night, waiting half an hour in line for D.C. food, basketball games, helping to put away 12 lbs. of popcorn in one semester, 8:00 classes, open houses, and those truly awesome Taylor sunsets. But more than anything else, I think I'll really miss all the friends I've made here (even the guys on 2nd East)."

"My four years at Taylor have been a search for identity and Christian growth. It was during this time I have secured my foundation in my Christianity and beliefs in God. I believe I have also learned what true friendship is meant to be. Through my interactions I have not only secured my foundation in God, but I have discovered some of my best friends for life."

"There were so many happy times for me over the past 4 years, to name a few: football, the love and closeness of all my buddies, getting into medical school, and most important I praise God for letting me be a part of the Holy Ghost revival that's beginning on campus. Probably the highlight of my 4 years here was the bond of friendship I had with my roommate and best friend, Ron Johnson. Buddies for life. I'm gonna miss you, Ron, especially. You too little Sis! "Sad faces painted over by those magazine smiles. Ticking away the moments that make up a dull day. Thinking of ways to fill up my empty days. Yesterday's a by-line, words upon a page . . . Tommorrow's a deadline, sudden and it's strange. Wish I could relax, I just can't stop my mind. Just when I needed to be on my own. Waiting for the final solution to strengthen the strain. Isn't it a tuff life? I'll get back up somehow. I'd give you everything I've got for a little peace of mind. Half of what I say is meaningless."

"During my freshman year, I tried out for the football team. After pre-season training, I learned I would not see much action during the regular season. I went to tell Coach (Sam) Sample I was quitting. He told me I had a lot to offer, and that true meaning wasn't found in what I got out of something, but in what I gave. That piece of advice not only carried me through that season, but continues to develop and bring special meaning to my life."

"Life at Taylor has been full of unique and special experiences for me. Among the more significant ones has been my membership in the Taylor Chorale. Each year as Spring Break tour approaches, there's lots of new music to learn, long hours of practice and lots of pressure in general. When the tour finally arrives, however, the Chorale pulls itself together into a harmonious and self-supporting unit. The beautiful music we perform, and the support and friendship of this group, will be one of the things I will greatly miss."

"Something that has meant a great deal to me is how I matured as a Christian. It is evident that Taylor people love our Father and the atmosphere creates a desire to grow in Jesus Christ and further our walk in Him. I would like to focus in on one 'Taylor person' — Walt Campbell, whose friendship I'll always treasure."

Where Else?

... can a boy have 341 people know who he wants to ask out before the girl does?

... do you wait in line for everything, from cashing a check to eating a meal to taking a shower and still put up with it?

... can you struggle to stay awake all day and then struggle to fall asleep all night?

... can you be excused from washing your sheets for two months?

... can you find someone at any imaginable time of the day or night that wants to order a pizza?

... does everybody wear alligators on their clothes?

... do people change their goals in life every three months?

... does two days without a letter mean the end of your reason for living?

... can you call your Dad from, collect, to wish him a happy birthday?

... can you hear about St. Anselm's theory of Atonement, the biological functions of an amoeba and how to find the square root of a pie at the same dinner table?

... can a girl exist on a steady diet of Tab, popcorn and milkshakes for years?

Where else do you look forward to going for years, complain about it the whole time you are there, and talk about how great it was for years after you left but college?

College = Insanity?

College also brings out insanity in the calmest people — including photographers. Somehow an instant audience of 1400 makes it possible to be entirely silly without much condemnation. Anything (almost) is possible, from Big Boy at the Dining Commons to a slug on the water tower. Who knows what midnight raid takes place and how much bucketing goes on in Morris Hall. Sometimes even hall directors enter chair throwing contests and Mrs. Hook has been known to celebrate Christmas.

RIGHT: Cameras seem to pop up everywhere — even in the face of photographer Tim Robinson.

RIGHT: Joe Edwards tries to conceal his cards while camping out. Braving the wilderness can be fun, but in front of Wengatz Hall, Joe?

LEFT: Riding bikes can be a relaxing, safe sport. Then again, it can also be as dangerous as flying.

ABOVE: Big Boy adds spice to the D.C. exterior — now if he could only do something about the food inside.

ABOVE: Well, that's one way of getting the message to the other end.

Changes

A year in college makes a lot of changes in a person. Even if parents are two blocks away, they can't be as responsible as they've always been. Old friends from home write and call, but they're not as close as the wierd ones in the room next door. And love is more important than ever. Not just "you and me by the lake" love, but friendships of all kinds. Adults, who have always been teachers or friends, are suddenly people to respect as people.

ABOVE: Moving out is a true sign that the year is finally over. Sue Jentick loads up her car to head home.

It is going to take these guys months to pack up all this stuff.

Jan Boberg, with help from John Hagy, learns that moving out takes more than an afternoon.

Randy Rutzen relaxes on the lawn after graduation. After four years of hard work, Randy desires to relax before heading out into the job world.

Focusing In on the Year of 1982-1983

RIGHT Working for the Student's Activity Council can cause a person to go insane. Chris Loomis shows a touch of craziness.

ABOVE Strolling across the bridge can be as challenging as joining the circus.

RIGHT Sisters Julia and Laura Shepherd enjoyed a bit of family while miles from home.

ABOVE: Art on the Green is an annual event during Fine Arts Week. Dr. Ray "Dad" Bullock demonstrates the jewelry process.
